Hello Dr. Rothbart

I have been interested in your research for the past couple of years. Several years ago, I was told that I had a condition called Morton's foot by a doctor and former world marathon champion in Boulder Colorado. Orthotics were created

The orthotics were a failure. I tried several more pair of custom orthotics - all of them failed.

A couple years ago, I stumbled onto the web site mortonsfoot.com. I read the information - and from my limited knowledge figured that the insoles that they were selling would work for me. They were being marketed as a solution to morton's foot. After talking with them, they felt that I likely could be helped - due to a short first metatarsal, which I do have.

I had seen the term Rothbarts foot, but never understood the difference. The folks at mortonsfoot.com suggested that they were basically the same condition and that the insoles treated both. I was a sucker. I tried every size and they weren't working.

Today, I found on your site - a PDF: http://www.rothbartsite.com/uploads/Morton\_vs\_Rothbarts\_Foot.pdf. What a piece of information this is! This explains the differences between mortons foot and Rothbarts foot. This information explains so much - I wish I had known years ago.

Thank you for the work and research that you do.
